

Use the Right Tool for the Job

While it is possible to use a single tool for many tasks, doing so does not always yield the best results. The same applies when choosing a wholesale insurance broker. Many generalist brokers can place the business but coverage terms and pricing may not be ideal for you and your clients. Using a specialist broker that understands the complexities of a particular industry will give you an advantage over your competition and allow you to provide the best results for your clients.

If you have clients or prospects that have construction, energy, environmental or products exposures, then Towerstone is the right wholesale insurance broker for you.

Our brokers have extensive experience within our core specialty areas and understand the complexities associated with creating insurance programs in these highly technical industries. We have proven time and again that our specialized approach produces better results for our agents and their clients.

Towerstone Core Specialties

- Construction
- Energy
- Environmental
- Products